

Firebugs Set Fire to Three School Houses

Last Friday morning firebugs set fire to three school houses and a store in Will County.

At 3 a. m., that morning the interior of the Schmuhl school on the Lincoln highway east of New Lenox was discovered on fire by passing motorists from Ohio. They aroused Mr. Shepley one of the directors who lives near the school. Other neighbors were awakened and an old time bucket brigade was hastily organized and the pump in the front yard of the school was used to supply the water and the blaze was put out. Damage amounting to $600 was done to the school interior. Books were torn up and the paper used to start the fire.

About 4 a. m., Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Osmus who conduct a store on the Lincoln highway in New Lenox and who sleep in the room back of the store, were awakened by the sound of an auto driving away from in front of their store, but thinking it was the bread man, they paid no further attention to it until they heard a noise and upon investigating Mr. Osmus found the outside of the store front on fire. The ground in front of the building had been soaked with gasoline and the front of the store had been sprayed with gasoline and then fired. Mr. Osmus aided by another man got the fire out before it had a chance to burn into the interior of the store. The exterior was only badly scorched.

A short time later a country school house 65 years old in Homer township was set on fire and burned to the ground.

Efforts were also made to destroy the Wilhelm school, a new school building located three and a half miles southwest of Joliet. All of the school books were taken from the desks and torn and placed in the washroom. A fire was started in the basement but did not reach the first floor.

Fingerprints were left on the glass at the rear of the building where the vandals entered. These prints were taken by Detective Michael Cassidy to be used in identifying any suspects. It is thought the firebugs were either communists or half wits looking for a thrill.

TINLEY PARK P. T. A. NOTES

Porkers Doped and Stolen From Farm Near Tinley

A story is going the rounds in Tinley Park about the bold theft of 1600 pounds of pork. According to the story a farmer residing south of Tinley Park had nine hogs weighing about 200 pounds each. The farmer and his family had been away for a few hours one night last week. On their return they found a porker lying in the barnyard, dazed. Thinking the porkers were sick, the farmer started investigating and was astonished to find the rest of the porkers gone. Upon inquiry among the neighbors it was learned a big truck had been seen at the farm on the night of the porkers disappearance. It was discovered that the pigs were doped so they could not squeal while being loaded in the truck.

To Reorganize S. W. Chamber of Commerce At Orland, Sept. 18

A move is on to reorganize the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce and a number of the former members have requested that a meeting be held at the Orland Park High school building Sept. 18th at seven o'clock p. m., for the purpose of reorganization and to urge extending the Southwest Highway from Orland to Elwood which is located 10 miles south of Joliet. Such a project would shorten the distance at least 5 miles and relieve the congestion thru Joliet.

This was the wish of Mr. Ben Barker before he died and he made a map in which he outlined that way. But nothing has been done in that way since his death.

Other improvements will be presented and it is hoped a large number will attend this meeting. Ladies are invited.

Geo. Lauffer Starts $10,000 Suit Against Mrs. Bruder

George Lauffer, wealthy Grant Park grain dealer, and former farmer of Mokena, has filed suit for the sum of $10,000 thru his attorney A. H. Krusemark, against Mrs. L. G. Bruder of Mokena.

According to the bill filed by Lauffer he charges that Mrs. Bruder had him arrested on July 13th on a warrant issued by Police Magistrate John F. Schultz of Mokena charging Lauffer with disorderly conduct and of kidnapping his children Adelaide and Alice and that he was unjustly arrested and imprisoned in the Will county jail from 10 a. m., to 1 p. m. the same day.

Lauffer further sets forth that he was arranged before Judge Schultz on August 30th but that Mrs. Bruder did not appear against him, so Judge Schultz dismissed the case for want of prosecution. Lauffer states he was acquitted of the offense as charged against him by Mrs. Bruder and that he has been greatly injured in body and mind and even hindered from transacting his business, also that he was greatly injured and damaged in his credit and circumstances and therefore asks for damages to the amount of $10,000.

The case is set for hearing in the September term of the Circuit court.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

THE LATE GARDEN

Now must I sing of beauty
Beneath the spell of death,
When come the willful autumn
winds
Despoiling with their breath.

I sing of strident zinnias,
Mirthful in the sun,
Unmindful that tomorrow
Their cycle will be run;

Of azure asters burning
Like sacrificial fires,
For the summer full with increase,
For the year that soon expires.

And hearts that loudly clamor,
And after beauty lost,
Must be resigned to loveliness
Returning unto dust.

Need Fire Protection Instead of Sewer

To the Editor:

A little about your town regarding its fire department. Your firemen are all right but the tools your town has for them to fight fire with they might just as well have none. It would do just as well to save the ashes. Instead of talking about a sewer for $75,000 the people had better get talking about a fire engine and some hose so when there is

HOMER FARMER AWARDED $250 AN ACRE BY JURY

The first condemnation suit tried in Will County to acquire right of way for a bond issue road has resulted in a jury awarding the property owners in question $250 per acre for land for which the county right of way committee had only offered $150 per acre.

The land in question is required for right of way on Maple road, was valued at approximately $250 per acre by a jury which heard the condemnation suit in the Will county court before Judge Ralph Austin in a verdict read Monday morning.

The county had brought suit against Wilhelmina Lahman and others with interest in the estate of the late William Lahman to obtain 2.25 acres of land for road use. The jury in a verdict returned after hours of deliberation, said the land was worth $562.50 or about $250 an acre.

The jurors allowed an additional sum of $428.25 for changes in fences and for damage to 1.6 acres of ground, lying between the new location of the road and the Wabash right of way in Homer township.

It was the contention of Attorneys John H. Savage and Robert Martin that this tract of 1.6 acres would not be farmed after the road was in place.

The county had offered $150 an acre and later raised the offer to $790 for land, damages and changes of fences. The county also agreed to pay for the necessary drainage which stipulation was agreed upon during the course of the trial.

The suit probably cost the county $700 to try, including court cost, witness fees, jury fees and other expenses. This makes quite an expensive right of way and the suggestion is being made by some people in the county that it might be cheaper if a compromise could be effected in future cases for right of way which would be less expensive to the county.

There is another suit pending against Mrs. Emma Bruhn in which the county seeks to obtain 3.7 acres of land for right of way use.

The verdict returned will undoubtedly meet with the favor of attorney's for the property owners as their original demand for settlement was $1000, while the jury's verdict grants their clients $990.75.

Among the witnesses called to testify regarding the value of the land in question were Senator R. J. Barr, Herbert and Walter Cooper and Ona E. McGovney.

Settlement of the suit means that the contractors can proceed with the work on this particular tract and may mean the completion of the Maple road for use this year.

CAR HITS POLE; DRIVER BURNS TO DEATH

Howard Thomas, 26 years old, of Hammond, Indiana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Thomas, 1306 Oakland ave., Joliet, was burned to death shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday when his automobile crashed into a power line pole along the Lincoln highway about a mile east of New Lenox and became ignited when the high voltage wires dropped across the vehicle.

Mrs. Joseph Hietje, Lincoln highway, was the only witness to the accident as far as Deputy Coroner Willard G. Blood has learned. According to her statement she was standing in the front yard at her home when the car came by about 40 or 45 miles an hour, going west.

One of the front tires blew out just as the machine passed Mrs. Hietje said, and the driver lost control. The car went shooting off to the right of the pavement, crashing into a pole about 100 feet west of the point where the blowout occurred.

The impact brought the pole crashing down to the earth and the car overturned. High voltage wires dropped on the car and almost immediately afterwards, Mrs. Hietje said, the machine was a mass of fire.

It was not known whether Thomas was stunned by the crash and so was rendered helpless or whether he was electrocuted.

The gasoline tank on the car had opened up and its contents together with the oil from the crank case saturated the machine so that it was like a furnace.

Sergeant James O'Neill of Joliet, and Sergeant Clarence Haslins of Chicago of the state highway police and Deputy Sheriff Patrick McCarty drove to the scene of the fire which had cooled sufficiently by that time so they could uncover the body. It was afternoon, however, before deputy coroners could remove the body, which was burned beyond recognition.

Identification was made by tracing the automobile license plates. In Hammond it was learned that Howard Thomas had left there Saturday morning for Joliet to visit his parents there.

Lyon & Healy contracted to train the band and put it on a playing basis which they have done in a very fine way. Under the leadership of Mr. DeRoberts the band has made remarkable progress.

Every one is invited to attend the concert. A nominal charge will be made.

RIEND OF THE WHITE MAN

"F" That is a title which has been borne by many Indians since it was first applied to old Massasoit, sachem of the Wampanoags, protector and preserver of the little colony of Pilgrims on the rocky shores of New England more than 300 years ago. It is a name which had various meanings, depending upon the person who spoke it. Uttered with pride by a Logan of the Cayugas, a Shabbona of the Pottawatomies or a Washakie of the Shoshones, it meant that they were conscious of the esteem in which they were held because of their friendliness to an alien race and because of their wisdom in recognizing the futility of resistance to the inevitable domination of this continent by the white man. But, spat from the contemptuous lips of a Pontiac of the Ottawas, a Satanta of the Kiowas or a Red Cloud or Sitting Bull of the Sioux, it had a very different meaning. When they applied that term to one of their tribesmen it carried the sting of denunciation as a renegade and traitor to the red race and it expresses their determination to go down fighting rather than to submit weakly to the hated invaders.

As American Indian day, which is celebrated on September 26 this year, approaches, it is fitting to recall some of these "friends of the white man" who had a part in the building of this nation—not the great chiefs, such as those already mentioned, who are comparatively well known, but certain others who are more obscure. To do that is to bring to light a little known chapter in the history of the United States army and to record the services of Indians who served as scouts with our troops against their own race in the innumerable Indian wars with the red man.

Indian scouts and guides have been used as individuals or groups by the white man also from the beginning of the settlement of North America. Aid of the tribes was sought for scouts, guides and allies by both the French and English in the long series of colonial wars which finally established English supremacy on this continent and both the British and Americans used them during the Revolution.

After the establishment of the republic Indians were used by our military forces in the various wars which pushed the frontier to the Mississippi and they proved invaluable as guides for the early explorers into the Far West. Among the latter, the outstanding name is that of Sakakawea, the Indian girl who led Lewis and Clark beyond "the Shining Mountains to the Western Sea." But, according to researches made recently by historians of the War department, it was not until after the Civil war, when the tribes of the Great Plains were making the last desperate stand of the red man against the white, that Indians were regularly enlisted as a part of our military establishment.

The most famous of these "friends of the white man" who took service with the army against their own race was the company of Pawnee Indian scouts, organized in 1864 by Frank North, at the suggestion of General Curtis for service against the Sioux. This group of 100 young Pawnee warriors served with General Connor in his ill-fated expedition into the Powder river and Yellowstone country in 1865 and so strikingly proved their value during this campaign that in March, 1867, General Augur authorized the organization of a battalion of four companies of Pawnee scouts with North in command with the title of major. One of the companies was commanded by Capt. Luther H. North who still lives at Columbus, Neb. From the day the scouts were enrolled until they were mustered out of the service in December, 1870, these Indian auxiliaries rendered service of inestimable value in protecting the builders of the Union Pacific railroad from hostile Indians, in guiding various detachments of the army against the Sioux and Cheyennes and in fighting brilliantly in every engagement in which they participated.

The outbreak of the great Sioux war in 1876 emphasized the need for Indian auxiliaries for our troops operating in the vast territory over which roamed the hostile Sioux and Cheyennes and it led later to an act of congress passed on August 12, 1876, authorizing Indian scouts as a part of the regular army. Three expeditions were sent into the field early in 1876, one under Gen. George Crook starting north from Wyoming, another under Gen. John Gibbon starting east from western Montana and a third under Gen. A. H. Terry starting west of Fort Abraham Lincoln, N. D.

At the beginning of his campaign Crook had the services of several half-breed Sioux as scouts and later he was joined by a number of Crows and Shoshones who were placed under the command of Maj. J. M. Randall. The leader of the Shoshones was the famous old chief, Washakie who, despite his advanced years, was in the thick of the fighting in several engagements. Gibbon also enlisted a number of Crows, who were placed under the command of Lieut. Charles H. Bradley of the Seventh infantry, and some of them became famous for their part in the tragedy of the Little Big Horn.

Included in Terry's command was the Seventh cavalry, headed by Lieut. Col. George A. Custer, and during April and May, 1876, some 53 warriors of the Arikara tribe, commonly known as "Rees," were enlisted as scouts and placed under the command of Lieut. C. A. Varnum and Lieut. Luther R. Hare of the Seventh. These scouts were led by Bloody Knife, a famous Arikara warrior who had served with Custer during the Yellowstone expedition of 1873 and again in 1874.

At the conference between Gibbon, Terry and Custer, held at the mouth of the Rosebud river, just before Custer started on his fatal march south, six of Gibbon's best Crow scouts were attached to Custer's command. They were Curley, White Swan, Hairy Moccasin, Goes Ahead, White Man Runs Him and Half Yellow Face, their leader. They were enrolled with the scouts under Lieutenant Varnum, who directed their work through their half-breed interpreter, Mitch Bouyer. When on June 25 Custer divided his command to attack the big Indian village which his scouts had discovered on the Little Big Horn he kept four of the Crows—Goes Ahead, Hairy Moccasin, Curley and White Man Runs Him—with him. The other two, White Swan and Half Yellow Face, with the Arikaras were attached to Reno's command.

The part played by the Crow scouts, especially Curley, in the Custer battle has been the subject for so much dispute that it is difficult to state positively just how much the four who went with Custer saw of that part of the battle which resulted in the destruction of the leader of the Seventh and the troops with him. The best evidence seems to indicate that they were with him until a short time after he came into contact with the hostiles and the first firing began. Then through Mitch Bouyer, the interpreter, he told them that their work of guiding him to the hostile village was done, that it was the business of his soldiers to fight the Sioux and that they were to go back to the pack train. Bouyer stayed with Custer and was killed when the hostiles overwhelmed that part of the Seventh a few minutes later.

Of the scouts with Reno, Half Yellow Face and White Swan appear to have had a hand in the fighting of that detachment, since White Swan was seriously wounded. Bloody Knife, leader of the Arikaras, was shot and instantly killed by Reno's side just as that officer led his battalion out of the timber to retreat to the bluffs across the river. Of the other Arikaras it has been the fashion for most historians to say in effect that "the cowardly Rees fled at the first fire." Prof. O. G. Libby of the University of North Dakota in his investigations among the surviving members of this group, made several years ago and published by the North Dakota Historical society under the title of "The Arikara Narrative," conclusively refuted this slander on these Indian allies and showed that they acted in accordance with Custer's orders, which were of the same nature as his directions to the Crows, viz., that their job was guiding and not fighting.

Indian scouts were used effectively in the long series of wars with the Apaches in the Southwest in the eighties. General Crook who was a master hand at dealing with the Indians was especially successful in securing Apaches to fight Apaches. Three companies of Apache scouts participated in the campaign in Mexico and New Mexico from June to November, 1880. In 1883 an Apache named Tzoe was captured by a party of soldiers who dubbed him "Peaches" because of his light complexion and rosy cheeks, both unusual in an Indian. Tzoe was sent to Wilcox, Ariz., where Crook was organizing his expedition into Mexico against Geronimo. Crook persuaded Tzoe to become a scout for him and he proved to be a faithful and valuable guide for the expedition.

Two other famous Apache scouts were "The Apache Kid," who served as a government scout against Geronimo in 1882, and "Mickey Free," who served as a scout and interpreter in the campaign of 1885. "The Apache Kid" later turned against his white employers, carried on a "lone wolf" warfare throughout the Southwest until he was killed by a white scout named Walapai Clark.

One of the most famous of all Indian scouts who have served the white men was a Kiowa named I-See-O. In 1888 I-See-O enlisted as a scout at Fort Sill, Okla., where at the time was stationed Lieut. Hugh L. Scott of Troop L of the Seventh cavalry. A warm friendship, which lasted a lifetime, sprang up between the Indian and the young cavalry officer and during the Ghost Dance excitement of 1890-91 it was the influence of Scott and I-See-O, working together, which prevented such an outbreak among the Kiowas, Comanches and Apaches as had taken place among the Sioux. I-See-O served as a scout at Fort Sill until the Indian scouts were disbanded in 1913. Then, facing poverty and want in his old age, the scout went to Washington to appeal to the "Great White Father" for aid. His old friend, now General Scott, interceded for him and he was restored to the army rolls with the permanent rating of sergeant. A year or so later, by a special act of congress, the War department was empowered to retain the old scout on the active rolls with the rank of sergeant so long as he should live. So until the day of his death, March 11, 1929, I-See-O wore the khaki of the United States army and when he died he was given the full honors of a military funeral.

Believed to be one of the oldest structures in Michigan is a log building erected by the Northwestern Fur Trading company on Beaver Island in 1824. The building is in a good state of preservation and has been shingled and cared for by its numerous inhabitants. At present an Indian family is occupying it.

There are already too many legal holidays—another manifestation of the prevalent overlegislation.

Productive Cabbage

Common cabbage is said to be the most productive vegetable, for it is believed that an acre of ground will yield a greater weight of green vegetable matter in the shape of cabbage than in that of any other vegetable whatever.

"I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at Change of Life. Now I take it every spring and fall and it keeps me in good health. I am able to take care of an eight-room house and garden at the age of 71 years. I will praise the Vegetable Compound wherever I go for it is a wonderful medicine for women. They should give it a good trial by taking about five bottles."—Mrs. Clara Riley.

"I was very nervous and rundown and weighed less than one hundred pounds. I felt tired and weak and I often had to lie down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I read the advertisement in the paper. Now I eat well, sleep well, and have good color. In fact, I couldn't feel any better and I weigh one hundred fifty-five pounds. I am glad to answer letters from any woman who wants to know more about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Bertha Stephens.

ROCK ISLAND TRAIN HITS AUTO; 2 KILLED

Wilkinson

Girl Held For Jury

WANTED BY THE POLICE—

Emil Kleckner of Harvey; age 19; height 5 ft. 5 inches; weight 140 lbs., dark brown hair; dark brown eyes; swarthy complexion; wearing dark blue suit; black oxford; when last seen had no hat or collar. He is wanted on charges of attempted murder and robbery.

With Emil Kleckner still at large, Lucyle Wilkinson, 329 W. 106th pl., Chicago, his alleged accomplice, was brought before Judge Frank Stuart Monday afternoon. She was charged with assault with intent to murder on complaint of Chief Alfred A. Terry and bound over to the grand jury in the October term. Bonds were set at $5,000; failing to give bonds, she was taken to the county jail. The prosecutor was R. L. Donigan of the state attorney's office.

The alleged attack on Terry took place at Shedd's pond on Wednesday of last week. The case has been given wide publicity in Chicago papers and in radio broadcasts. In Blue Island where the girl was lodged in the police station, the question most frequently asked on the street corners is, "Have you seen Lucyle yet?"

LINDBERG AND GOLDSMITH CASES COME UP

The same afternoon, Judge Stuart took up the cases of G. Lindberg and Eugene Goldsmith, which have been continued from time to time.

G. Lindberg, charged with disorderly conduct on complaint of K. Sidell and with threatening to beat and kill Chief Terry, was granted a change of venue to Judge Carl Carlson of Blue Island. The case will come up on Sept. 16 at 3 o'clock.

Eugene Goldsmith was charged with assault with a deadly weapon by Chief Terry. States attorney Donigan moved the case be nolle prossed with leave to reinstate. A new charge of assault and battery was placed, to which the defendant pleaded guilty. The court assessed a fine of $50 and costs. When the defendant agreed to pay the costs and $8 for the time lost by the injured party, the court suspended the fine pending good behavior for a period of six months.

Wm. Daugherty Held to Grand Jury for Assault

William Daugherty was bound over to the Grand Jury on Tuesday after a hearing before Judge Frank Synakiewicz of Blue Island. Bond was fixed at $10,000.

William Daugherty was arrested at 167th and Western Thursday of last week and taken to the Homewood station of the county police and booked for rape, assault and threatening to kill with a gun. Bonds were set at $13,000. The arrest was made by Deputy Fleming on complaint of Helen E. Burrier.

After she was refused admittance to several homes, the woman was brought to the Homewood station by Chief Kaminski of Posen. There she made her statement of the alleged attack which is supposed to have taken place at 147th and Western early that morning.

Katherine Rapp of Trumbull ave., Midlothian, who accompanied the woman earlier in the evening, is understood to have aided in the identification of Daugherty. When brought in, he was identified by Miss Burrier.

Stunt Day for Blue Bird Club

The Blue Bird club met at the home of Mrs. Rose Miller Weinberger last Thursday. Sixteen members were present, and two new members were added. Mrs. Burke R. Andrews and Mrs. Wm H. Walker of Crestwood.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maud Lancaster, 149th and Hamlin, October 2.

A covered dish luncheon will be served.

This will be "Stunt" day for the club; so be prepared to "recite a poem, speak a piece, or do a stunt."

LEGS CUT OFF IN ACCIDENT

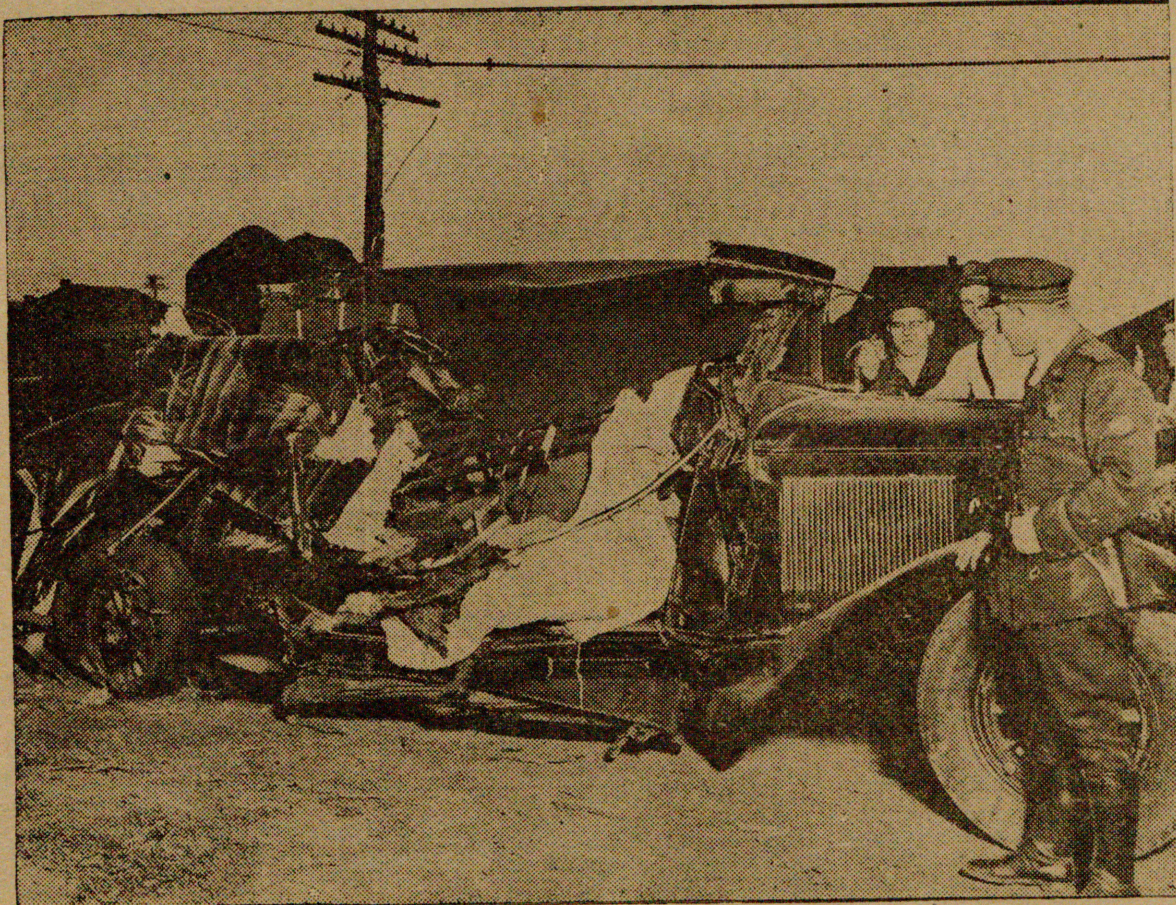

Heinie Demperwolf, 21, of 6151 S. Green st., lost both legs under a train on the I. H. B. tracks on Western ave. Posen at 7 a. m. Tuesday. He was riding with Richard Parma, 19, of 2500 Blue Island ave., when Parma swerved to avoid the train. Demperwolf lost hold and fell under the train. Thomas Means of W. SHATTERED WRECKAGE OF CRAWFORD AVE DEATH CAR

Plenty of Practice for Volunteers

At 8:35 Sunday night the Volunteers were called out by a blaze in Crestwood. Speeding up Crawford ave., down 142nd, up Keeler ave., the anxious firemen found a blazing pile of lumber. To their disgust they found that the firemen of Crestwood were having a little practice of their own and had fired the lumber to add realism to the scene. Chief Terry had seen the blaze and turned in the alarm.

Friday evening another practice was afforded the firemen when the smoke from a bonfire back of Paul Swaighart's garage appeared to be a fire in the garage itself.

Incidentally the firemen complain that the fans are a bit too enthusiastic—they get between the truck and the cars of the firemen, delaying their arrival at the scene of the blaze and frequently blocking the road entirely.

Chief Sagadin Given Gold Star by Fire Dept.

Chief Sagadin of the Midlothian Volunteers was called into Kreis Bros., garage Saturday evening by the firemen, asked to resign and given a razzing in general. After having enough fun with this chief, the men then presented him with a new gold badge.

No Kindergarten Before Thanksgiving

Although plans had been made to hold kindergarten classes in the O. K. Morris Real Estate offices, the school board has decided not to start the kindergarten until the new school is opened after Thanksgiving. Lack of water and sanitary facilities in the real estate office is given as the reason.

At the meeting of the school board on Thursday of last week, 375 adjustable seats were ordered amounting to $3000. It was voted to spend $2200 to fix up the heating plant of the Robbins school. A supply company agreed to repair and properly install the blackboards in that school.

In a previous meeting the following truancy officers were appointed: John Dryja for Posen; Stuart Turner of Crestwood for Midlothian and Mrs. Daisy Smith for Robbins.

Boosters to Meet on Monday

The Midlothian Boosters club will meet at the Legion hall Monday evening at 8:30. According to the latest reports there are now 21 business men who are paid-up members.

By Monday it is expected that there will be 30 members and that applications can be made to the Lions International for a charter.

REPUBLICANS MEET MONDAY

A smoker and social meeting of the Bremen Township Republican club will be held in Woerheide hall Monday evening, Sept. 15 at 8 p. m.

ARRESTED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Emil Kaledkiewicz of Chicago was arrested in Midlothian by Chief Terry Friday night and turned over to city police. The charge was non-support of wife and children.

Village Board in Uproar Over Fire Dept.

Former Chief Floyd McEwan demanded an explanation from the village board of Midlothian Tuesday night as to the reason why he and others had been dropped from the department. A spirited discussion followed.

He claimed that they had the right to a trial and wanted to know on whose recommendation the list of firemen had been adopted. Clerk Shallerer told the board that only the appointment of the chief had been approved by the board.

Trustee Burns asserted that the change had been made at the request of the department. McEwan asserted that the question was never taken up by the volunteers. Larry Sullivan asked what would happen if it were shown that such were not the desire of the department.

Attorney Harper stated that the department never had a legal existence, as only the chief was appointed by the board. Sullivan was told to bring in another recommendation from the firemen if they were not satisfied. Nick Healy declared that the recommendation should have been signed by the chief. In answer to McEwan's demand for the names of the firemen asking the reorganization of the department, he was told to consult a fortune teller. Harper said that the chief's term had expired.

Frank Mead brought down the house by asking how a recommendation could come from the department when there was no department. Sidell declared that those wanting the change should have had the courage to sign their request. Mead, although declared out of order, demanded that the people know from whom the action originated. On motion of Burns, the board will meet in special session to-night to consider the fire department.

Earlier in the meeting the board voted to spend $8.75 apiece for 28 street markers, to be 10 feet high and bearing the names of the streets in black on a yellow background. The signs will be made in the village and painted and installed by Andrew Yare.

Bonds were ordered printed for the two sidewalk jobs. E. Burns brought in a suggested blanket policy covering the fire department, which was referred to the committee on public safety. Not more than $100 will be spent in reconditioning 41st ave.

An ordinance creating a parks committee was passed, to consist of four members, who will have charge of the parks under the direction of the village board.

Trustees Kreis and Jebbens were absent.

Press Car Kept Busy

The "new used" Greyhound of the Gravel, press car of the Messenger staff was properly broken in the past week.

With Kevin McCann at the wheel, it carried C. E. Stimming, the survivor of the crash on Friday to the Oak Forest infirmary. Saturday evening it again became an ambulance when he took Royal Auth who crashed at 147th and 40th ct. to the same institution.

Mrs. H. Sawyer of New Mexico is visiting her sister Mrs. J. Barnes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Adams are going to attend a picnic, Sept. 13, at Western Samaritan Park, St. Charles given for the McNess dealers, their families and friends.

Baseball

At 3 o'clock Sunday the heavy-hitting Aces will meet the Eagles in the third game of the city series to determine the championship of Midlothian. Each team has won a game. A large crowd is expected and a lot of good baseball is in prospect, with close playing and heavy hitting. Rafferty and DeRudder will probably pitch for the Aces.

EAGLES WON

The Eagles won by a score 20 to 9 from the Blue Island Clowns through the nine pitching of O. Grunwald allowing 10 hits, 1 pass and 12 strikeouts while the Eagles got 20 hits, 9 passes and 5 strikeouts. The feature hitting was Nick Stuart with 4 hits to his credit; also the holding of Bellows was great throwing 2 men out at the plate. J. Barnes, Jr., caught a good game, but J. Barnes, Sr., filling in at short in the absence of R. Tschuelin made 2 errors.

Don't forget the Eagles play the final game with the Aces, Sunday, Sept. 14 at 3 o'clock for the championship. As they stand now the Eagles won the first game, 12 to 8 and lost the second, 5 to 4, if the Eagles play like they did today look out Aces.

The possible batteries for Sunday will be Grunwald and Barnes or Crowley.

The Oak Forest Young Men's club beat Tinley Park at Tinley 10 to 8 Sunday.

NO GAME FOR ACES

The Aces game with the Neissens of Blue Island was called off on account of rain and not having another open date this season they will be unable to meet again. Most of the tickets to the game were bought by our good friends the merchants of Midlothian who have supported us in the past; so those who bought tickets came out to the deciding game of the series for the championship of Midlothian between the Aces and the Eagles. When the hat is passed put your tickets in it. The two teams in Midlothian are doing their very best to give Midlothian people the best baseball they can and the collection taken up is the only way they have of buying things needed for playing baseball; so come out Sunday at 3 p. m. sharp and support your favorite team.

Posen City Series Opens

The first game of the Posen City series ended with the score 11 to 8 in favor of the Maroons against the Aces. An early attack by the winners put them in an 8 to 1 lead at the end of the third. A slaughter was avoided, however, by a strong comeback on the part of the Aces. But the lead was to great to overcome. A slow infield marred the game with errors; the Maroons, 7; Aces, 6.

The next game of the series will be played on Sept. 21. Next Sunday the Aces travel to Phoenix to meet the St. Ladislaus team and the Maroons play the Friscos at Blue Island.

MIDLOTHIAN SCENE OF FATAL CRASH; PRIEST VICTIM

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.

Beginning Monday Sept. 8, we will make the routine examination of the school children as in other years, taking the small rural schools first in order to finish with them before the fall rains come to make the roads muddy. We understand the same arrangement as carried out last year will be used this year; that Miss Catherine McCloughrey will distribute the wall charts to the various schools in the township and each teacher will write in the name of her pupils and when I examine the pupils I will take this chart home with me and apply the red and blue stars according to the physical finding in each child. We hope that parents will cooperate with the teachers and with us in getting this job finished without too much interruption by contagious disease. This can be done if all parents will keep a close watch over their children and keep them home and report the case on the first sign of contagion; or better still, have them immunized, so there will be no contagion.

Midlothian Legion Notes

Al Clifton and Harvey Thormahlen carried the colors in the parade at the Legion convention in Aurora Monday. Tuesday was spent in business session. Others attending the convention were: A. Wirtz, A. A. Terry, K. Sidell, Fred Mills, Andrew Berg, Mrs. A. A. Terry, Mrs. A. Wirtz, and Mrs. Harvey Thormahlen. They returned Tuesday.

Full details of the convention will be given next week.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion Post 691 held a special meeting Thursday evening for the purpose of electing officers.

Mrs. A. A. Terry was elected president, Mrs. Frank Lilly, vice president, Mrs. C. Rein, treasurer. Mrs. Terry was also appointed delegate to the convention at Aurora, with Mrs. I. H. Thormahlen as Alternate.

Pilgrims Progress From Champaign To Iodine

The jubilant and bibulous progress of young Royal Auth from Champaign to Chicago suffered a severe interruption last Saturday in Midlothian. In fact, came to a complete stop against a concrete sewer. Traveling East on 147th, it was not until he reached 41st avenue that Royal realized that he was in Midlothian. He came to a full stop immediately; he poked his head through the roof of his Chrysler coupe; he surveyed the country and drank his full of the scenery.

Alas! He had already drunk too much. When he started again the roughness of Midlothian's principal boulevard disturbed jarred, maddened him. He turned to a verdant ditch drove down its precipitous side, and met disaster between its grassy banks.

And now his head protruded, not through the roof, but through the windshield. He surveyed our village again but it no longer pleased him. His genial countenance now dripped red and he scowled.

Scowled ferociously on Andrew Berg who excavated him from his chariot. Scowled murderously on those who suggested a doctor. Scowled at and blew his vital fluid on the face, neck, collar and shirt of Kevin McCann who drove him to Oak Forest.

And there Messrs. Berg and McCann left him scowling at a doctor and a nurse.

Net result of that pilgrim's progress:

To the sewer — not much.
To the car — ask Clarke-Hulett.
To himself — an awful face and a gosh-awful hangover.

The toll of lives exacted by the Crawford Ave. crossing of the Rock Island was increased last Friday by two when a Cadillac sedan bearing three men North on Crawford Ave. to the West side of Chicago from the Lincoln Fields races was shattered by the Joliet bound train, 281, commonly known as the Bankers' Special. Two of the occupants were killed in the crash; the third escaped with internal injuries. The dead were:

The Rev. Joseph Tracy, 30 years old, assistant pastor of the church of the Resurrection, in Austin.

Thomas Gannon, 58 years old, a West side restaurant owner, of 3156 West Polk Street.

The driver, C. E. Stimming, 5541 Congress Street, vice president of the Madison Square bank, was taken to the Oak Forest infirmary where immediate x-rays showed that he had suffered several fractured ribs, brain concussion and probably severe internal injuries. He was removed by ambulance to his home in Chicago on Saturday.

The party had spent the day at the race track and was hurrying home. As the car neared the crossing the warning signal announced the approach of the Midlothian-bound No. 174, from the West, and the Bankers' Special from the East. Both trains whistled for the crossing. The time was 5:38 or 5:39 P. M.

The drivers attention was concentrated on the train from the West which was still 200 feet from Crawford Ave. when the car reached the crossing. It was only there that he saw the Joliet train bearing down from the East. A desperate swerve of the Cadillac failed and the draw-bar of the engine struck the car at the center of the body hurling it 100 feet into the ditch on the West side of Crawford, hitting and snapping off a telephone pole in its course.

Gannon was evidently killed at the moment of the crash and his mangled body hurled through the car roof against the warning signal which it put out of commission and where a portion of it was impaled and dangled for a time.

Father Tracy, it seems, was unhurt by the train. When the car hit the pole, however, his neck was broken with almost instant death resulting. Stimming, the driver, cannot explain his miraculous escape.

Frank Woodcroft, Engineer of the Bankers' Special, knew nothing of the approaching car until, when about 70 feet from Crawford Avenue his fireman, Bert Arnold, screamed "Hold it, hold it". As he pulled the emergency, he saw the green hood of the Cadillac sweep out past the engine to be lost in a cloud of dust and splinters.

The train stopped within 800 feet but both Arnold and Woodcroft had suffered such a mental shock that they could not walk back to the scene of the accident.

In the cab of the east bound train which was running coal-tender first, the engineer, G. W. Bartholeman, was sitting on the north side of the cab and was, also, unaware of the approaching car. But his fireman, J. Evanson, grabbed and hung onto the whistle cord when he saw a crash impending. The train, however, did not stop nor slow down.

According to the engine crews, the fast Joliet train was traveling between 40 and 45 miles an hour, and the other between 30 and 35.

Within a few minutes, traffic on Crawford Avenue was blocked by the gathering crowd. Cars were parked on the roadside for over a block. At one time, almost two hundred people were on the scene.

The bodies were taken to Oak Forest in the Mohr, Hickey and Reiser ambulance which was called with difficulty because telephone service to Oak Forest was disrupted when the hurtling car snapped off a telephone pole.

Saturday morning the inquest, conducted by deputy-coroner Carney, was held in the Mohr, Hickey and Reiser undertaking parlor. The families of the victims were represented by Mr. Bernard Connerty and the Rock Island by Mr. Jones.

The train crews, Chief of Police, A. A. Terry and Kevin McCann of Midlothian were the only persons questioned. It was learned that Engineer Arnold in his 21 years service never before had a serious accident. According to his fireman, Woodcroft, who had been on the run only three days, the south side of the crossing is obscured by trees until the engine is very close and that, at the speed the Bankers' Special travels, it takes about 800 feet to make a stop.

As no eye-witnesses had been found the inquest was adjourned until October 9th.

Mr. Gannon is survived by his wife and three daughters; Father Tracy leaves two sisters and two brothers.

John Luban, 48, of 1031 W. 19th st., Chicago, was struck and killed by a Rock Island freight on the right of way at 169th st., at 4 a. m. Sunday. He was on his way to pick mushrooms. The body was taken to a Blue Island undertaker. Marie Luban, his wife, survives him.

Docked Lambs Avoid Docked Prices

Failure to dock lambs and to desex ram lambs results in discounts of $1 to $5 in price, yet these operations are neglected every year with hundreds of thousands of lambs, especially in the Middle West, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation points out.

A lamb's tail is a symbol of neglect and warns the buyer of a probable lack of finish. It serves no useful purpose and is objectionable in every way. Ram lambs which are altered early will gain faster, use less feed, finish more readily and handle more easily than if left entire. Ram lambs tend to be heavier in the neck and shoulder than wether lambs, are lighter in the hind quarters, not as well finished in the carcass and coarser-meat. Lambs which have been docked and castrated have an outlet as feeders if sold before they are finished.

Both operations may be done at the same time when the lambs are ten to fourteen days old. Using hot pinchers appears to be the best method of docking. A bench with an upright containing a hole through which the lamb's tail is drawn is used. The job may be done also with a sharp knife.

This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success.

Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua 1:8-9.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.—Psalm 1:2-3.

The Mud of Midlothian

This item rates a headline clear across the front page.—Editor Andrews got a haircut.

We note that the Suburban Star, which is the name of a weekly (spell it as you will) paper in Blue Island is selling Sanitary Dish Dryers for 59c each.

Buy your ear-muffs, moustache cups and bicycle horns from the Suburban Star.

And that's enough free advertising for the Suburban Star in this issue.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star.

Now that he is in the limelight, we wonder if Chief Terry has been approached by the Lucky Strike or Pond's Cream people for a testimonial.

Contrast: The Tribune: "Shedd's pond, a swampy region near the Oak Forest infirmary."

The Messenger: "Shedd's pond, an ideal spot for a park for Midlothian."

That whirling sound you hear near the station is Fire Chief Sagadin polishing his new gold star on his electric buffer.

Suppose some shoe dye got set on the buffer—Accidentally.

And, if he'd hang that star on his tie he wouldn't have to walk around holding his coat open.

According to a sign on the Midlothian Turnpike in Crestwood, Crawford avenue is nothing but a crossroad.

"Woodman spare that post!" is the plaintive plea of many Midlothianites as they see the street markers in our subdivisions fall before the on slaught of axe men seeking kindling wood in the wilds of the village.

The aforesaid axe men might have better success if they would follow the trail of Frank Allen's Mack which has disguised as an ordinary tin monster.

Or they might raid the woodpiles in which are hidden the Chinamen who have been gorging themselves on Mason and Searle's chop suey.

A village housewife fooled a high-powered garden cultivator salesman by pointing out that her neighbor's chickens were much more efficient and cost her nothing.

However, she has never thanked her neighbors for the chickens' presence.

And another housewife, after cleaning out her husband's desk, says there was everything but gold in it.

He says she has a lot of brass.

NOTICE: Will readers who write in for my photo have some gentleman address the envelope or have same typed?

Do you know that if all the political discussions carried on in the Rock Island smoking cars by the Midlothianites were recorded on phonograph records it would keep all the reproducing studios in the country busy for at least five years.

Should a resident of Midlothian be called a Midlothianite, a Milo, or as a recent correspondent signed himself, a Mudlother?

There May be Poison in YOUR Bowels!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other pure ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system form souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drug stores sell.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS
Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary
Illinois Fringe Association

At the dedication exercises at Fort Chartres state park August 31, Director H. H. Cleveland, of the department of public works and buildings, represented Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. "Under Governor Emmerson's administration," he said, "worthwhile improvements have been made on the site of the fort. The administration built the museum which we are dedicating and it completed the construction of the hard road which has made this park readily accessible to our citizens and visitors. The museum contains many objects of historical interest. Among them are the desk of Shadrach Bond, Illinois' first governor; a bookcase from the state's first capital, which was located at Kaskaskia, and the first American flag that waved over the fort."

During the ten years which ended June 30, the population of Illinois' charitable and penal institutions increased 50.85 per cent. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has been advised by Rodney H. Brandon, director of the department of public welfare. In the same period the population of the state as a whole increased only about one-third of that percentage, 17.65 per cent. It was this alarming growth in institution population which made it imperative upon the present administration to launch its record-breaking building program to relieve overcrowding, Director Brandon explained. Forty new buildings are under construction now and within sixty days the department expects to begin to occupy some of them. All of them should be completed, or near completion, by the first of the year, he said.

Melvin A. Traylor, chairman of the Illinois drought relief committee, was chairman of the sub-committee which made recommendations adopted at Washington by the fiscal representatives of 15 state relief committees providing first for employment of the full credit of local banks and expansion of existing agricultural credit corporations and co-operative marketing associations, and next, where these were unavailable or inadequate, favoring formation of agricultural credit corporations to operate as loaning agencies under the intermediate credit banks. The co-operative associations were advised to use the financial assistance offered by the farm board.

From the standpoint of contagious diseases, the most favorable health conditions ever recorded for Illinois are reported. Mortality during the first half-year from tuberculosis and typhoid fever fell far below any previous experience for a corresponding period. The death rate for pneumonia was 20 per cent below that of the same period in 1929. Typhoid fever is the only contagious disease that is not at the present time much less prevalent than is usual and this is due to the drought having reduced water levels and thereby increased the degree of pollution where contamination exists. In tuberculosis the mortality rate is down 16 per cent.

Fish from the streams of Illinois are being exhibited this month at several state fairs by Director Ralph F. Bradford, of the department of conservation, the exhibits being in charge of experienced men from his department. Scheduled dates named were: Duquoin, September 1 to 6; Fairbury, 1 to 5; Augusta, 9 to 11; Jacksonville, 9 to 12; Marion, 8 to 12; Mt. Vernon, 15 to 20; Bushnell, October 16 to 17.

A magnificent memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic, to be located near Lincoln's tomb in Springfield, is being advocated and the subject was presented to the national encampment of the G. A. R. in Cincinnati by H. B. Davidson, one of the representatives from Springfield at the encampment. State and federal legislators are being interested in the project.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce, through its local chambers, has mailed members a ballot on which to express their approval or disapproval of the proposed revenue amendment to the constitution of Illinois. This is said to be in pursuance of a long-established custom to determine the policies of the chamber on important questions to be determined by referendum.

Legislation that will cut all taxes on real estate in Illinois in half, followed by a small tax imposed upon the income of intangibles, such as stocks, bonds and securities that yield an interest income, was urged here recently by State Senator Earl B. Searcy as practical relief that would be felt by farmers and merchants of Illinois.

The State Association of Supervisors, County Commissioners, County and Probate Clerks and County Auditors of Illinois will convene in Springfield September 30 and October 1. Several hundred officials are expected and among the speakers announced and subjects are: Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, "The Revenue Amendment"; Frank T. Sheets, chief state highway engineer, "Distribution and Refund Gas Tax"; Rodney Brandon, director of state department of public welfare, "Distribution of Mothers' Pensions"; Lewis Vogel, "Preparation of Ballots."

The Illinois deep waterway will be completed by June 30, 1934, insofar as the federal portion of the work is concerned, states Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, and adds that this has been placed at the top of the list of federal projects. Between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 is to be appropriated by the federal government for work on this project in the fiscal year 1932, no plan having yet been perfected by which the money can be secured before that time though efforts in this direction are still being made. The balance of the $7,500,000 authorized for the Illinois waterway will be allocated during the years 1933 and 1934. Secretary Hurley says that while their plans called for having barges operating on the lakes to the gulf route in 1934, this does not mean that the whole Mississippi route will be completed by that time.

For failure to docket the cause in compliance with the rules of the United States Supreme court in the case entitled Elmer Schneider against the People of the State of Illinois, the Supreme court dismissed the case, as shown by the mandate from that court filed in the office of Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Illinois Supreme court. Schneider in 1916 was given a life sentence for murder and was confined in the state penitentiary at Joliet until May of the present year, a period of 14 years, when he was admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000 by the state Supreme court. Dismissal of the case in the United States Supreme court made it necessary for the defendant's attorney to deliver him into the custody of the warden of the Joliet penitentiary, or the bond would be forfeited.

The last gap in western Illinois in U. S. highway route 36 has now been closed by the throwing open to traffic of the portion of Illinois state route 106 from Kinderhook to the Hannibal (Mo.) bridge. Federal 36 is slatted across Missouri from Hannibal to St. Joseph with the exception of a short stretch that is being concreted and on which work is nearly completed. The Kansas highway department states that 36 will be surfaced and opened to traffic this fall clear across Kansas and on into Denver, Colo. The Illinois river is crossed at Florence and the Missouri river at St. Joseph, both on new highway bridges, so that the only toll crossing is the Mississippi at Hannibal.

As soon as the state can check over the reliability of the contractors, Priegranzer & Son, coming from Antioch, Ill., work is to be started on straightening the Saline river near Harrisburg, this firm being low bidder at $143,000. Included in the job is clearing a 350-acre wooded tract, on which purely local labor is to be used by the contractors. Straightening of the river requires the removal of almost 2,000,000 cubic yards of earth and will require work on about seven miles of river bed. It is expected to prevent back water and overflowing both in Harrisburg and vicinity, and to permit the drainage district to proceed with its work.

Suits to enjoin the city of Chicago from issuing bonds for $6,500,000; the county of Cook from issuing bonds for $12,000,000, and the Chicago board of education from issuing bonds for $12,000,000, on the ground that they are in violation of the state constitution, were filed in the office of Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Supreme court. These suits were filed to clear up the legality of the emergency relief legislation voted Chicago and Cook county by the state legislature in special session.

A four weeks' tour, covering approximately 4,000 miles through eastern and southern states and Canada, sponsored by the geography department of the state Normal university under the supervision of Dr. R. G. Buzzard, head of that department, has been completed by several students of that university. Sixty-four persons made the trip in two buses, including several teachers working for extra credit.

A meeting of the Illinois Republican Service Men's Voters league is to be held in Springfield September 17 at which 300 members are expected. Howard P. Savage, candidate for treasurer of Cook county and chairman of the state organization, will be present to preside. Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom and Gen. Milton E. Foreman of Chicago have been announced as two of the speakers.

Osteopaths and chiropractors have appealed to the Illinois Supreme court for a writ of mandamus seeking to have two separate boards, one of osteopaths and one of chiropractors, appointed to examine applicants for licenses in their respective fields. A board of medical men now examines such applicants. The same plea for a writ was rejected recently in the Sangamon county Circuit court.

Fifty of Chicago's civic and business leaders headed by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, expect to make a good-will motor bus trip through the southern and eastern communities of Illinois soon, Springfield being among the cities to be visited October 1.

To save all their cash and energy to assist in entertaining the hundreds of delegates to the state labor convention later in September, the labor unions of Springfield did not formally observe Labor day this year.

SLEEVES FEATURE OF FASHION; MILLINERS TURN TO VELVET

HAVING victoriously passed through the sleeveless age, fashion's followers are now entering the sleeved era. Such a medley of sleeve ideas as the advance styles for fall and winter are ushering in! Leg o' mutton sleeves on the way, "angel sleeves" to grace the evening gown, sleeves which begin to widen below the elbow, sleeves of elbow length which flare over lace, lingerie or embroidery.

fur trimming is arranged so as to accent the lower part of the sleeve, sometimes to an exaggerated degree. Frequently the puff which reaches from elbow to wrist is made of that fabriclike fur matching the huge collar.

To Be Velvet Season.

According to the shadows which coming millinery events are casting before, it is going to be "all ered sleevelets, and listen to this: the erstwhile sans-sleeve décolleté dinner gowns are taking unto themselves sleeves.

This revival of sleeves is especially emphasized in connection with the new allover lace frocks, for lace continues to be a favorite theme for the dinner gown.

A lavishness of detail is centered on the long close-fitting sleeves of dinner gowns made of monotone chiffon and other similar materials. This elaboration usually begins at or below the elbow, the lower portion being intricately worked with beads. Frequently, floating panels are attached at the elbow, lending a most picturesque aspect to the silhouette.

velvet" for fashion's followers this season. At any rate, velvet is having its day, not only in relation to suits and frocks but the milliners are especially enthusiastic in regard to velvet for fall and winter.

Designers working with velvet are striving for the unique, and consequently they are manipulating it with an originality which gives it a refreshingly new aspect. The whole scheme of things is "different," from the actual handling of the material itself to the very pose of the hat on the head, not forgetting the new "lines" and colorings as expressed in terms of velvet.

Perhaps the most striking note sounded for early fall (some there are

Early Fall Millinery

In the afternoon mode sleeves have become a plaything of the designer. There is no end to their diversity and to their fanciful trends. A favorite type is the sleeve which distinguishes the youthful afternoon dress in the picture. This charming frock is fashioned of faille silk in one of the lovely green tones. Cream georgette is employed for the lower part of the sleeves, with embroidery and applique done in matching green. This frock emphasizes the slenderness of the figure by means of a wrap-around sash which ties gracefully at the front.

Coats also are registering innovations in sleeves. They are even going so far as to suggest dolman effects. When the full-below-the-elbow type is not achieved through the actual cut and manipulation of the cloth, then who believe the vogue will "carry on" into winter) is the chic chapeau of white velvet, which tops the dark frock, and the new somber-toned coats and the stunning furred velvet suits which are down on the program for the coming months. These white velvet fantasies have made instant appeal in the fashionable world. Young sophisticates adore this new fashion. They emphasize its smartness by adding white gloves, as shown to the right in the picture. This style-wise young woman is wearing a beret of dainty white velvet which is shirred and draped as only a milliner-born can do.

The swanky cap-fitting model centered to the left is part of black felt and part of white velvet. Each of these little chapeaux is designed to set back on the head so as to "show your curls and look pretty."

When it comes to "style" the model at the top has it. In draping the black velvet, the designer has kept in mind the trend to wide effects at the sides. The last hat in this group is fashioned entirely of wide sapphire blue velvet ribbon. Fashion is also highlighting the black velvet hat with a touch of turquoise blue.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter.

She felt her horizon widening. What a world men lived in! Papa had his quarries, and Will his curlicues, and Loring his law! How wonderful to live in something, and for it! She felt that her own life was dim and futile. Now that she was out of school, she was expected to have a good time until she married. Will was the only man she knew outside the old familiar circle. How dull her interests were compared to his thrill over a twenty-five-dollar-a-week job.

"But, Will," she turned to him in such a manner that it seemed their faces would touch, drawn by the strong attraction that brought them so close—"I thought you were going to be a real artist."

"Ho," he said, "that's why I couldn't stand the Art Institute! I want to be a cartoonist. I've discovered that you can do a whole lot more with a pencil than make a petunia. I think you can make a line stand up and howl. You can make it do all sorts of things for you, caricature, design—nonsense. I don't want to be a color artist."

"But the birds you made for me, when you were only ten—the colors, and the way their heads bent—it's a beautiful book, Will. I showed it to my zoology teacher when I was in school, at Lake Forest, and he praised it. I wouldn't take anything for it."

Will brushed the birds aside impatiently. "Kid stuff," he told her. "Have you seen these little shadow figures, just straight lines for body and limbs? You can get action into one of those things. Look here." He had been busy with a soft pencil on the edge of the stiff menu card, and he showed Ernestine now a sketch of a cat, sitting there looking at the fish list, licking his whiskers—a predatory hungry Tom. She laughed involuntarily, and her eyes filled with admiration.

"I see what you mean," she said. "It's a new kind of art, like jazz is a new kind of music. I know what you're trying to get at, and you do it, too. It's disrespectful though—don't you think?"

He was entranced with her understanding.

"Of course it's disrespectful," he said robustly. "Why not? I think the time has come for a little healthy disrespect. We'll show them."

He was very compelling. Ernestine's look of admiration was extravagant, and he was becoming a little drunk with it.

"I've done several column heads. You watch the first page of the second half of the Sun. I always put a little cat's head down in one corner of my stuff. We're not allowed to sign our things, but you can identify mine if you watch the paper. The fellows all encourage me, and my boss does, too."

He looked at her for a long moment and then exclaimed: "Gosh, it's good to talk to you, Ernestine. You always did get right inside of my heart. I wasn't a bit surprised to see you. You may not believe me but all these years I've often thought I'd meet you. I never forgot that day you came to our house. I've often seen your shadow, sitting there in the kitchen eating bread and milk, and talking to mom. I remember I wanted to give you all my things—every one. You should have taken them. It would have made a lonely kid happy."

She was tender, remembering. "I made an awful fuss because they dragged me to the lake that summer," she told him. "I wanted to stay in Chicago with you, and the practical difficulties of leaving a child behind did not interest me. We should have been together more. We were real friends."

"A boy never forgets kindness," he said soberly. "You were so good to me and always took my part."

"But, Will, you did something you never knew, for me. You told me one day a thing I've never forgotten. I thought your brace gave you a wonderful advantage, in the way of a lever to get your own will, and you scorned me for such a thought. It would be taking advantage, you said. I've never forgotten that. You were the one who taught me to be sporting."

The spell was cast. The mysterious bonds of spiritual understanding were forged.

"You're awfully pretty, Ernestine. You were a cute kid—but fat. I can remember what round cheeks you had. But now your cheeks slope down in that perfect line." He touched the line of her cheek with a tentative forefinger, then quickly withdrew his hand and flushed. "Dark eyes, dark hair and pale clear skin. What more could a girl want, unless it is such perfect bony structure? You'd be pretty anyway, dark or thin, or pale or flushed, because it's real—deep. Now you're blushing—and that gray coat." He laughed delightedly, and the deep color suffused Ernestine's cheeks at his personalities. But she was not displeased, only smiled at him.

"Aren't you glad we knew each other when we were kids?" he said to her. "It makes us seem so much closer now."

They swayed together and fell into a warm hypnotic silence. His little finger brushed her hand, as he knocked his ashes into the tray the waitress had placed for him, and at once they rose, talking and laughing artificially.

Ernestine felt the need to masquerade her bright joy in him. She was acting like a moon-struck high school girl, acting as though she had never talked to a man before. Well, she hadn't. Not like this, certainly. She had listened to plenty of them raving about themselves, and explaining the technicalities of football, but she had never taken part in such a satisfying conversation. But she dissembled as they left the tearoom and turned toward the newspaper plant.

It was dark now, and the streets were crowded with homegoing workers, so they instinctively drew close together. She asked after his mother in a formal tone.

"She'll never be well," he told her sorrowfully, and at once her sympathy drew them back into intimacy. He tried to put the conversation back into place.

"How's your pretty sister Lillian?" She answered that Lillian was a beauty now, fair and slender and exquisite. A lady.

"She's going to marry Loring Hamilton, I guess," she said. "He's at the house a lot, as he's always been. He's awfully good to both of us, but Lillian's his choice. He's in his father's law office now. He inherited a nice practice. I believe he wants to be a judge. Don't you remember him?"

"A big blond boy? He was almost grown when we were kids. Yes, I remember him. He treated me with an air of weary patience. I hated him. He used to tease you and pull your hair. If he prefers Lillian, he's changed, for he always noticed you. I admit I was simply jealous. He had the run of the house, and I was an outsider and treated well only because I was a kid."

"Why, Will, that's not a bit nice of you to say," she protested, and he laughed good-naturedly. Both of them knew it was true.

"Is your mother just the same? She had such a pleasant voice, but she was bossy. Kind of a queen. I admired her tremendously. She fitted entirely my juvenile notions of a grand lady."

Ernestine laughed now. "There's nobody like mamma for managing every one," she admitted.

They came to the Sun offices, and as they went in through the squirrel cage, the rhythmic crash of great presses came muffled to Ernestine's ears. Will took her over the whole place.

"Upstairs and downstairs, and in my lady's chamber," he said.

In the syndicate rooms he introduced her to half a dozen young men who were much impressed with her youth and beauty. He showed her the stool he sat on, the work on his board.

Mr. Poole came out and shook hands with her, and she was conscious of disappointment. He was a huge, untidy old man, with fat cheeks that had fallen a little, and a shiny bald head. But his eyes were intelligent, his voice was very kind. She felt that she might like him, if she could only know him.

Will's vanity seemed excessive. Although she knew he was proud to show her, he was none the less proud of himself. But it was like the vanity of a capable child, not at all displeasing. Not until they got into the street again did Ernestine realize that they had walked all over the big plant with their fingers interlaced. But she clung to him now shamelessly. He was such an old friend. She was filled with strong reluctance that this vivid hour should end.

He said goodbye at the bus, without mentioning another meeting. Ernestine could not let it go at that.

"But you must come to see me," she said, as the conductor waited impatiently for her to board the bus. "I want to see you again, Will."

"Sure," he said vaguely. His mind had already gone back to work. "Sure. Call me up some day."

Ernestine went quickly along. Her feet were dancing, and her heart was dancing, too. She was extraordinarily happy and full of life. If only such an encounter could be a daily occurrence!

Some one was standing on their doorstep, watching her, waiting for her. She ran up the steps, and Loring Hamilton was there, big and fair and handsome, in his dark coat, with the fur collar.

"Hello, Lorie. Have to rush in. I'm late. Are you just leaving?" He looked down at her, the light from the drawing room window streaming on to his face, and Ernestine paused, surprised. She was filled with an inward dismay for she had never seen him like this. His face, usually complacent, was keen now, his blue eyes were brilliant sparks, his whole countenance quickened and fired. His voice, when he spoke again, had a barely perceptible quaver.

"Why were you running, Ernestine? You're still a kid half the time. When I heard you running, I knew it was you, because my heart began to run, too."

"Nonsense," said Ernestine briskly, but he was persistent. "I was just going away, disappointed that I hadn't seen you, and here I have you alone for a moment at last. I've been wanting to tell you how beautiful you are, since you're grown. Where have you been? Your face is shining. I could see it luminous in the dark street. Ernestine—don't be silly. I'm trying to tell you I care for you—I—"

She pulled away from him with determination.

"You're the silly one," she said impatiently. "And dumb, as well." She passed him quickly, and closed the door behind her, shutting out his handsome, desirous face.

In her room, dressing for dinner, she was furious with him for intruding on the enchantment of her hour with Will. Didn't he know that he had made himself conspicuous, all last year, with his attentions to Lillian? He was not her lover. What was the matter with him?

Lillian came in from her room, which adjoined Ernestine's, and the younger sister looked at the elder one with old but ever-fresh admiration. "Loring was kidding me," she told herself. "Of course he's crazy about Lillian."

Writer Has Long List of Rail Superstitions

Black cats are eyed with horror by railroad men, but dogs are considered lucky. Cross-eyed people avoid approaching American engine cabs because they are evil omens liable to be driven away with well-aimed lumps of coal.

Their proper function is to sit on the first seat of the rear coach, thereby conferring one day's luck on the conductor. As a matter of fact, while the engine driver is giving his steed a final inspection all adults who stare at him are considered unlucky unless they are accompanied by children.

Accidents on United States lines are believed to occur in triplets. An engineer who reports one is gloomy and despondent until he has worked off the spell by reporting two more.

Neither will any engineer who has not lost all interest in life cheerfully write "13 cars" on his report; he prefers to report "13 cars and an engine."

The brakeman supports the driver in his observance of superstitious rites by never carrying his lamp above his waist. To do so is considered fatal. But the strangest of all tales of railway superstition is the story of the engine on the New York, New Haven and Hartford line. On the thirtieth of every month, no matter who he may be, the driver of that engine reports sick. The number of the engine is 0-13.—London Mail.

Date Set for Sessions

The Constitution provided that the congress should assemble March 4, 1789, and thereafter convene "in every year" on the first Monday in December unless it shall by law appoint a different day. Up to and including May 20, 1820, 18 acts were passed naming dates other than December. Since then, with few exceptions, congress has convened in December.

Lesson for September 14

JEREMIAH, THE PROPHET OF INDIVIDUAL RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—Jer. 1:1-10; 14:7-22; 21:27-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jeremiah, A Man Who Would Not Give Up.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jeremiah, A Man Who Would Not Give Up.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being Obedient to God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Responsibility of the Individual.

I. Jeremiah's Call (Jer. 1:1-10).

1. It was prenatal (vv. 4, 5).

Before Jeremiah was born God ordained him a prophet unto the nation.

2. His diffidence (v. 6).

This seems to have grown out of his youth and inexperience.

3. His hesitancy overcome (vv. 7, 8).

God graciously appeared to him and made clear that he should:

a. Go where sent.

b. Speak as commanded.

c. Be not afraid of their faces.

The servant of God is called upon to face strong enemies. Only the conviction of his divine commission will enable him to face the foe.

d. The divine presence assured.

It matters little as to the strength of the foe if the messenger is blest with the presence of God.

4. The divine message given (v. 9).

Not merely the thoughts, but the proper words to express the thoughts are put into the prophet's mouth.

5. The nature of his ministry (v. 10).

It was to be wider than that of prophesying. Six words are given as descriptive thereof. The first four are destructive in their implication—"root out," "pull down," "destroy," and "throw down"; two constructive—"build" and "plant."

II. Dialogue Between Jeremiah and God (Jer. 14:7-22).

The occasion was a most severe famine which had come upon the land, (vv. 1-6) as a result of which many were dying.

1. The prophet confesses the people's sins (vv. 7-9).

He made no evasion of sin, but pleaded with God not to abandon his people. Abandonment would be interpreted by the heathen enemies as God's inability to help them. No merit could be pleaded for the people, so he pleaded for the sake of God's name that God would not leave them.

2. Too late for mercy (vv. 10-12).

(1) Jeremiah's prayer declared useless (vv. 10, 11).

Because of the gross wickedness of the people, God informs Jeremiah that punishment is inevitable.

(2) Religious services of no avail (v. 12).

The disloyal people of Israel hoped to turn aside God's wrath by engaging in the services of Jehovah. Such services are an abomination.

3. The doom of false prophets (vv. 13-16).

Even though false prophets lulled the people to sleep, God held them responsible. God gives sufficient discernment to enable people to know their leaders. No one can plead ignorance in such cases.

4. Waiting upon God (vv. 17-22).

(1) Jeremiah walling the sufferings of his people (vv. 17, 18).

(2) Jeremiah pleading for his people (vv. 19, 20).

(3) Pleading for forgiveness (v. 21). He based his plea on covenant relation, not upon personal merit.

(4) Hope only in God (v. 22).

He acknowledges that the nation's only hope was in the living God.

III. The New Covenant (Jer. 31: 27-34).

1. Promise to build and to plant instead of to break down and pluck up (vv. 27, 28).

2. Freedom from the power of heredity (vv. 29, 30).

No longer shall the children suffer for the sins of their parents. Those who are joined to Jesus Christ are under a new law of life superior to the law of heredity.

3. The law written within (vv. 31-33).

Through regeneration the heart has not only the desire but the power in the Holy Spirit to rise above and to be free from carnal impulses.

4. Teachers no longer needed (v. 34).

God shall speak directly to all from the least unto the greatest so that no longer shall the knowledge of God be dependent upon the human teacher.

5. Sins no more remembered (v. 34).

When God forgives, offenses are remembered no more.

Cow Calling Contest To Monee Dist. Fair Feature, Sept. 17-19

An exceptionally large turn out is looked for by Secretary Harry J. Conrad for the cow calling contest which is to be a unique feature of the Monee District Fair at Monee on September 17-19. The contest is being sponsored jointly by the Fair management and the Blue Valley Creamery Institute which will award a handsome cow bell trophy to the winner.

Mr. Conrad said that he decided to put on this novel and fun provoking event after hearing reports of its great success in other places. He added that he expects it to be one of the drawing cards of the Fair.

Prospective participants in the contest should get in touch with the Fair office.

The cow calling contest harks back to the days when there were no fences and the cows ran in the woods or on the open prairie.

Be sure and attend this wonderful fair.
